

Quotes & Connections

"The church has two choices. It can be in the business of providing clear-cut exclusive formulae for people to accept. It is the way many of the more conservative churches approach evangelism and Christian culture. On the other hand, it can offer to accompany men and women as they are on their individual quest for a meaning in life, in their search for truth and in their openness to a faith which contains both of these."
—Peter Ball, Journey Into Truth

Loving your neighbor is more important than religious duties, obligations and rituals (see Mark 12:33).

"You can't mass-produce disciples. The religion I was socialized in was about domination. We need to move from a religion that dominates to faith that restores."
—Jer Swigart, Global Immersion

"Give up your good Christian life and follow Jesus."
—Garrison Keillor

"Christless religion is always adding something to the gospel. Religion is always attempting to improve God's recipe of grace. Don't let anyone tell you that you can overdose on grace. It's impossible to focus on God's grace too much. We need more grace, not less."
—Greg Albrecht
